A slight discrepancy exists between this and the total area of Ireland as given in the Return, viz., 20 acres, accountable for by the fact that the Compiler omitted all fractions of an acre in the calculation of this table.

Asylums and similar institutions are put into the Miscellaneous Column where supported by County Rates, but it is impossible in every case to say, from the description in the Return, whether some Asylums are Charities or not. County gaols appear also in the Miscellaneous Column, while Convict Prisons are debited to the Crown.
